Working directly with local democracy and human rights advocates, Freedom House supports nonviolent civic initiatives in societies where freedom is denied or under threat. Through a combination of analysis, advocacy, and program work, Freedom House directly and vigorously challenges brutal regimes, the silencing of journalists, the dismantling of political opposition and civil society, and denials of citizens’ fundamental rights.

Specializing in rule of law issues, ABA ROLI has worked with justice sector actors to ensure that laws incorporate human rights protections, hold state actors accountable for violations, strengthen legal aid for the indigent, enable citizen empowerment and participation, support human rights monitoring, strategic litigation and advocacy, and assess state compliance with international human rights commitments.

Representing journalists both as an at-risk group and as critical actors in advancing human rights, Internews brings expertise in digital and physical security, social media and digital communications, and strengthening the enabling environment conducive to a robust and independent media.

Pact empowers local partners to craft their own solutions to complex socio-economic and political challenges using a suite of industry-leading approaches to organizational capacity development and systems strengthening. Pact is a pioneer in the use of Applied Political Economy Analysis (APEA) to design and implement adaptive and politically-smart programs that are based in a thorough understanding of local context.

Transforming the way that people deal with conflict, away from adversarial approaches and toward cooperative solutions, Search brings expertise and experience in preventing and responding to violence and atrocities, advancing transitional justice, countering violent extremism, empowering children and youth, promoting security sector reform, producing media content for conflict transformation, and supporting monitoring, evaluation, and learning.
